Baby Show Awards Made; "Living Flag" Features Today's Program.

Special to The Star
PROSPECT, Sept. 26 — Prospect's fall festival and corn show formally opened last night with a good crowd attending despite the cool weather. A baby show in the afternoon was one of the opening events.

Highlight of today's session was a living flag formed by virtually every pupil in the Prospect schools, about 300, with Creta Moyer as the Goddess of Liberty and Tommy Baker as Uncle Sam.

Mrs. William Herr is in charge of the display, which will be repeated Friday at 3 p. m. and Saturday night at 8 p. m. She is assisted by the school faculty and mothers and friends of the pupils, who made the capes and other colored material used in the display.

Flag Program

The flag, which is formed for about an hour, measures 18 by 25 feet. The children sing five songs, Star Spangled Banner, America, America the Beautiful, Columbia the Gem of the Ocean and God Bless America.

A short talk was also scheduled during the display.

Yesterday's baby show winners, selected at the home of Mrs. Herr, were: boys, David Allen Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Reynolds, $5 first prize; Jerry W. Disbennet, second $2; Richard Edward Roberts, third $1, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Roberts. Girls: Nancy Marie Swann,

LAST RITES HELD TODAY FOR ALICE JEAN SCHELL

Funeral and Burial Services Take Place at Cemetery.

By The Associated Press
Burial service for Miss Alice Jean Schell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl W. Schell of 658 Bexley avenue, Vernon Heights, was conducted today at 10 a. m. in Marion cemetery. Miss Schell, a sophomore at Miami university at Oxford, O., died suddenly Tuesday night in the university hospital of infantile paralysis.

Rev. Howard L. Olewiler, pastor of First Presbyterian church of which Miss Schell was a member, conducted a combined funeral and burial service. Only the immediate family was at the grave, but standing nearby were more than 75 friends of the family. Four truckloads of flowers were banked around the grave.

The body was brought to Marion yesterday afternoon in a hermetically sealed casket which was placed in the receiving vault at the cemetery over night. The casket was not taken to the home and for that reason it was not necessary to place the home under quarantine. Dr. N. S. Siffitt, Marion county health commissioner said this morning.

Ciano on Way To Berlin for Axis Conference

By The Associated Press

ROME, Sept. 28 — Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italy's foreign minister and son-in-law of Premier Mussolini, left today for Berlin to conclude diplomatic negotiations which some sources say apparently are intended to bring Spain into the war at the side of the axis powers.

Fascist sources indicated Ciano would take part in three-cornered conversations with Ramon Serrano Suner, Spanish minister of government, and German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, who outlined Adolf Hitler's plans to Mussolini and Ciano in Rome last week.

(In Berlin, it was believed Ciano would participate in some solemn ceremony of signature; and that Japan as well as Spain figure in the diplomatic activity.)

Ciano's visit was described officially as a "normal contact, but of great importance." An authoritative source said "collaboration" with other countries "which are awaiting an axis victory" would be discussed.

The newspaper Il Popolo Di Roma, whose editor is regarded as a close friend of Ciano, declared Spain's position seemed to be one of pre-belligerency.

Foreign circles in Rome meanwhile expressed belief that Japan's relations with the axis powers—heretofore considered "close"—had been strengthened further in a talk between Ciano and the Japanese ambassador, Kijiro Anai.

WOESSNER GETS LIFE TERM; APPEAL LOOMS

Former Crestline Man Sentenced in Fremont Slaying.

An appeal to a higher court on behalf of Alpha (Red) Woessner, 31, former Crestline man under sentence to life imprisonment, is probable, Glenn P. Bracy, his attorney, indicated today, according to reports from Fremont.

Woessner, convicted of second degree murder last week in the death of Walter Snyder, 22-year-old sugar refinery worker, was sentenced Tuesday by Common Pleas Judge A. V. Baumann of Fremont. Judge Baumann, who has served frequently in Marion county, overruled Woessner's motion for a new trial.

Viewed as the clinching evidence in the trial was a confession of the slaying signed by Woessner after Prosecutor Al Hyzer advised him not to sign it unless he was guilty.

In the statement, Woessner said he struck Snyder during a fight and left him for dead Oct. 31, 1938. Snyder's body was found Dec. 7 in the Sandusky river and despite the trial and conviction of Woessner, authorities have never learned how it got to the river. At one time it was rumored there would be further arrests.

Wyandot Co. Boy Slays Father

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. at the Pot Chapel, Madison county, W. Va. It was not learned when the body will be taken there since it cannot be removed without the official release by Coroner Propert. Authorities did not indicate whether they will permit the son to attend services.

Succeeding steps in the case, after completion of the investigation, were not outlined by Prosecuting Attorney Hunter. It was indicated, however, by Juvenile Judge Russell H. Kear that the boy likely would be brought before him for a hearing and arraignment.

Expresses No Sorrow

He reiterated his assertions of having no sorrow and "doing it again" and gave further explanation of happening which led up to the shooting. He told that he and his father had quarreled yesterday afternoon in a Nevada restaurant over a request for spending money. He had thought about killing his father for "some time" and the quarrel yesterday led him to carry out the act.

The gun he used belonged to the family and was used by the father for hunting purposes. Shells for it were in the home, the boy said. He related how he stood in a room adjoining his father's and connected by a doorway.

Only a curtain drape separated them and he shoved it aside with the gun barrel, pushed the weapon through and pulled the trigger, according to the story told officers.

The building in which the family lived is on the west side of the main thoroughfare of the Nevada business section. It is directly north of a railroad passing through the town and the boy told how he waited until a freight train was going by to fire the shot. It was this, authorities said, that probably drowned out the noise and accounted for the fact that few persons could be found who heard the shooting.

MARYSVILLE MAN HELD IN JAIL AT KENTON

Special to The Star

KENTON, O., Sept. 26—Robert Simpson, 22, of Marysville, was held in Hardin county jail today after he pleaded guilty to armed robbery in connection with the hold-up of a Kenton filling station last June 29. He told Police Chief R. L. Clark that he drove the car, which Henry Beach, now serving a term in Ohio State penitentiary for robbery, and Albert Nelson, also of Marysville, now awaiting trial in Delaware county on an armed robbery charge, made their get-away after holding up Paul Smith, attendant at the Huston service station. The trio obtained $112.08, including $50 of Smith's personal money which he had planned to bank the following day.

3. RAF bombers pounded German "invasion ports" along the channel for three hours and 45 minutes, setting great fires stretching from Boulogne to Dunkerque.

Berlin Airport

4. The British air ministry reported RAF raiders scored hits on Berlin's big Tempelhof airfield, a munitions factory, a railway yard and important power stations. (Berlin acknowledged five killed, five wounded in British raids over Germany, with eight Berlin apartment houses destroyed during a 5-hour attack.)

5. London's millions emerged from underground shelters after the 19th consecutive dusk-to-lawn assault. Fires were started in many parts of the London area, but the authoritative British press association said an intense "flaming onion" barrage by anti-aircraft guns had kept the Nazi raiders away from the heart of the rubble-strewn capital of empire.

6. Hitler's high command reported that waves of Nazi warplanes "effectively bombed" British warships anchored near Plymouth as well as military barracks near Dunger in other attacks were directed at Portland, Southend, an airplane factory at Filton, and London's port facilities on both sides of the Thames.

HITLER DECORATES NEW GERMAN PILOT ACE

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Sept. 26—Germany's latest ace pilot is Major Adolf Galland, 28-year-old pursuit squadron commander, who declared in an interview today he always downs at least one British plane on every flight to England. He was decorated yesterday by Adolf Hitler, who added the oak leaf to the knight's cross of the iron cross for Galland's 40th "individual victory" of the war. Galland's squadron is credited with shooting down 385 British or allied planes since May 10.

Withdrawal of Dakar Force Disappointment to Britain

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 26—Great Britain smarted with disappointment today over abandonment of the attempt to seize Dakar, key port of French West Africa, after a three-day battle in which the admiralty guardedly acknowledged that British warships had suffered damage and casualties.

To many, the incident recalled memories of British setbacks in Norway, Flanders and Somaliland, but the public was too much concerned for the moment with the battle of Britain to voice widespread criticism, and there was no indication the ill-starred venture had weakened Prime Minister Churchill's government.

The press, for the most part, contented itself with publishing the government communique on the withdrawal under such headlines as "Fleet Withdrawn from Dakar—No Wish to Fight French."

New News Chronicle alone sounded a note of censure, striking out with a bold headline "De Gaulle's Expedition to Dakar Fails" and printing an article by Vernon Bartlett, independent member of parliament, storming against "delay and hesitation" and declaring "it has been decided" that Germany "must be allowed another success."

The decision to withdraw the "Free French" forces of General Charles de Gaulle and the supporting British fleet from Dakar was made, the British ministry of information said, "when it became evident that only a major operation of war could secure the fall" of the port.

The communique explained, "it has never been the intention of his majesty's government to enter into serious warlike operations against those Frenchmen who felt it their duty to obey the commands of the Vichy government."

While acknowledging that his had been scored on British warships by French shore batteries, the communique did not specify the extent of damage or casualties.

The British reported, however, two of three French submarines which took part in the engagement were sunk and indicated his had been scored on the 35,000-ton French battleship Richelieu, which the British reported they had damaged in an expedition to Dakar last July 8.

He escaped by a ruse when found in the home by a guest, Mrs. Elmer Whitt of Columbus, according to police reports. He told her he wanted to see Mrs. Phillips, who was not at home, and left with a look valued at $125, officers said.

They are accused of burglarizing the Palace theater Sept. 2, involving the theft of $26 and two guns. BERLIN, Sept. 26—Every night when an air raid alarm screams through the vast German capital Adolf Hitler, as an example to the German people, retires immediately to a spacious air raid shelter under his palatial new reichs chancellery and remains there until the all clear signal is given.

At present about 100 children and 30 women who either are expectant mothers or who have just become mothers are brought to the chancellery shelter nightly. Others who greet the fuhrer are his major-domo, adjutants, officials on night duty and servants.

The shelter is being expanded now to make room for 600 children and 120 expectant mothers and new mothers.

Marion Man Gets Letter from Niece Near London Telling of Bomb Raids

Mrs. Jessie Parker, Once a Marion Visitor, Tells of War Dangers But Asserts "We're Not Worried."

A letter received this week by William Roecker of 693 East Center street from his niece, Mrs. Jessie Parker of East Ham, Essex, a suburb of London, reflects the calm which Nazi bombing for weeks apparently has been unable to shake—and it also carries the mark of the censor.

One end of the letter had been opened and revealed with paper bearing the stamp, "Opened by Examiner 5492." Only part of one line was clipped from the letter, apparently the name of a section which Mrs. Parker described as having been hit by one high explosive and four incendiary bombs. The letter was dated Sept. 3.

Mrs. Parker is the daughter of a brother of Mr. Roecker. Years ago Mr. Roecker and two of his brothers came to this country from their native Germany and a fourth brother, Mrs. Parker's father, went to England, married there and established his home.

Excerpts from letter Mrs. Parker's letter in part, follows:

"Well we are still merry and bright, with all the ideas that the Nazis think otherwise. Am even now writing this in the dugout. This is our second warning today. By now we are more or less used to it. For one thing we do not, or have not yet, shall I say, felt the full force of it as some poor things have. It's a beautiful sunny day, (August was miserably cold). So, of course the R. A. F. are doing overtime now, both here and in Germany. Night time is the worst. They don't send so many planes, they seem to come singly for a particular object or two. Working round, and round and round, for hours, it seems. When they get particularly near their objective the A. A. (anti-aircraft) guns let them have it. But it shifts them nearer us. That's where our uncertainty lies. When they can't get near to what they want they just get mad and drop them on houses to terrify.

So far our worst experience was last Friday night, 30th. Round and round and round, then whizz and bang four times in quick succession, each time wondering if the next was ours. Not far from us, houses were demolished, others badly damaged. Seven people were killed and 15 injured. A month ago one high explosive and four incendiary bombs were dropped near. (Censored).

Tells of 50 Planes "Yesterday, the 2nd, we saw above us the biggest formation. At least 50 planes overhead, another 50 or so a little farther over. They reckon over a thousand came over. They were driven back mostly by A. A. guns. We could see them surrounded by puffs of smoke. On Saturday we saw two parachutists bale out. Of course we were thrilled to death, but they take ever such a long time to descend, so that we didn't see them land. They gradually drift further and further away as they descend (Nazis of course). We are having big battles in the air today, 3rd."

She explained that a member of the family had fixed up bunk in the bomb shelter so that the family might lie down and sleep. "We are not worried," Mrs. Parker wrote. "The whole world knows by now what lies they are."

"I wonder sometimes how long this war is likely to last with all the small countries complicating things. Food is plentiful. Sugar and eggs are most scarce. Fancy sugar, 1/2 lb. per head. You can't do much with that. So far I've managed to get a dozen new laid eggs per week. We were in the pictures last week. We just stayed put and hoped for the best."

Mrs. Parker spent about a year in Marion around 1920, visiting her uncle and other relatives.

Attitude of Japan and Spain Toward Axis Gives Britain Anxious Moment

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

There have been few such anxious moments in the war for England as the present while she waits to learn whether powerful Japan and strategically placed Spain will add their weight to that of the Berlin-Rome axis in an effort to crack the British empire up for division among the four.

Adherence of either Nippon or Spain to the axis would shake Britain badly. Should both of them rush in for the kill, it would create a situation of extreme gravity.

However, should this position of four-against-one materialize, the question at once will arise as to whether England will have to face this storm alone or whether she may expect aid. First off, we shall want to know what Russia will do, for this vast union would be a mighty factor.

Moscow's Prospects
The Muscovites may be credited with expecting that sooner or later (probably sooner) they must fight both Germany and Japan. And when all is said and done, Russia and Britain in most respects would be natural allies against this ambitious quartet of self-appointed cartographers.

Then where will Turkey stand? This most powerful of the Balkan states, leader not only in the Balkans but among Near Eastern countries and guardian of the vast important Dardanelles, is England's good friend, but has been sitting tight thus far—in large part because of Russian pressure. They told me in Ankara not long before the war that the Turks placed their trust in Britain as in no other nation, and there is no indication of change of heart.

Question of Turkey
Another big "if" is the great Moslem world which would follow the lead of Egypt—so far England's ally. A Holy War would raise a hob with the nations against which it was directed, for there are few things more terrible.

It certainly would seem an ironic circumstance to British Premier Churchill and his fighting flock if they have to take on this added burden now, just as they have demonstrated that they may have chances of beating Germany and Italy. It is, of course, the strength of the British resistance and counter-attack which has driven Hitler to try to draw Spain and Japan into the conflict to help finish the job. The Nazi chief wouldn't split his spoils of conquest four ways if he didn't have to.

MEMORY OF THE MOON

CHAPTER 36
To The Victor
DON bent to kiss Constance. "Forget everything; I'm in the saddle now!"
Donna whisked in gaily. "My word, how you do steal the limelight!" she prattled. "Here I spent eight days and nights, being a tutor to my family to try to save Pedro what was going on so he'd save the ranch, and then just as I was ready for the big denouement, you jump off the deep end!"
There was silence for a moment. Constance waited for the next news. Then Donna sidled nearer the bed.
"Connie, will you be my maid-of-honor?"
"No!" The word came out very forcefully. This was too much. "No! That I don't think Pedro will make an ideal brother-in-law," she hastened to say.

"Pedro! Good gracious, Con, that tall, dark and handsome wouldn't have me as a gift. I'm marrying Jack Dea. You know, Santa Barbara and way-points. We're going to the islands!"
"But you and Pedro," began Constance.
"Listen, sweet, all I ever had out of Pedro's company was a course of curtain lectures. He was the one who made me see what a nit-wit I was around you. He made me appreciate you. He likes girls like you, girls with a purpose, like that red-headed Irene something or other."
Constance scarcely heard Donna's chatter until she said, "and I think Nadine and the Major are that way."
So she had lost to the red-head, Constance thought. She had been so concerned with the thought of her head that she hadn't listened to her heart. Not that it mattered; she was just $50,000 behind marrying anyone herself.
"Nurse," Constance awakened from a late nap. "I'm leaving tomorrow. I can't! I? But I don't want anyone to know."
"Well," said the nurse, "if you can pass that man who's waited downstairs every day—"
"What man?" hope flared up.
"John Raskthorne," said the nurse, reading it from a card.
Hope died down. By dint of bribery, Constance left the hospital in the freight elevator. A hired car and driver waited at the ambulance entrance. Constance was glad she didn't have to steer the car past that memorable spot.
El Cabrillo was quiet when she dro was smiling at her in his old, teasing way.

"You're wrong. I'm just a hired hand on this ranch."
Constance felt the world sway under her. Could Pedro be swaying his help to the red-headed Irene?
"You're not buying in? Why, Pedro. Why?"
"My wife needs the money."
This, thought Constance, is defeat.
"You see," he was explaining carefully. "I fell in love with a shrewd young woman. She bargained with love. She didn't know anything about love. You can't bargain with love, because it has to be paid in like kind."
"Well, I can repay her love with mine, consequently, I don't need the money and she does."
Constance swallowed, wondering why her throat could be so dry when this wet fog was rolling in, enveloping them.
"I hope you will both be very happy," she offered formally.
"Oh, we're going to be," Pedro assured her. "Dad's retiring and my wife's brother and I am going to run the place. He's a fine kid. Never had a chance. No discipline, no man to keep his excess vitality in the right stream. Yes, sir, Don Cabrillo's one of the nicest."
"Pedro—"
"Yes, Michael?"
"Now will you let me tell you what I've been trying to tell you for months?"
"Now you don't have to," he laughed. "If you can imagine Don, looking as he does, in the role of cupid—"
Not a Dream
She was in his arms. She wasn't dreaming it. And if she were, she hoped she'd never awaken.
She did. She pushed Pedro away. "I can't let you do it," she protested. "El Cabrillo has meant too much to you. You need to own part of it."

"I will be owning a half of one-fourth," he assured her. "Community property law in this state gives me that... when I marry you. Besides, didn't Raskthorne tell you, as he told me, that I was trying to marry the ranch?"
"But—"
"There's that argumentative but again. Listen, dear, we're doing old John out of enough, you and I. Let him have the satisfaction of thinking he was right."
"Even if it does cost you fifty thousand?" she asked, and laughed. "I do come high."
"And worth every fraction of a cent to me, Michael."
Constance knew this as surely as he knew she would sacrifice more than that for Pedro. She lifted her face from his arms, and the fog curled her hair in wet tendrils, curled the dark lashes back from narrowed eyes.
"Now, Michael, Maloney," he warned, "you can't bargain with me. No time. Let's get John paid off so we can be married right away; I've waited long enough."
Constance resighed up and turned his head to one side so that she could see the rugged profile. "Imagine bargaining with a ruthless one like you," she chided. "No, I was just thinking, and it's queer Pedro. I've never taken an unearned cent without paying interest. I thought I never could. But I don't mind accepting this money from you. Why?"
Pedro smiled his teasing smile. "It couldn't be that you loved me, could it? Love neither gives for gain nor accepts for burden. I've learned all this in the past year," he added with mock modesty.
"Now let's go down to Dad. He was pulling for you to fail while he helped you win, because he thought you needed relief from your family. He was going to buy the place and then give it to us as a wedding present. He seemed to know, ever since your first visit, that you'd marry me some time."
"And you didn't?"
Pedro's past doubts were encompassed in two words: "Oh, Michael," as he gathered her back into his arms.

LORAIN CELEBRATES COMPLETION OF BRIDGES

By The Associated Press
LORAIN, O., Sept. 26.—Lorain's citizens today proudly surveyed two new bridges across the Black river—the final steps in the $7,000,000 development of the city's natural harbor.
The snipping of ribbons officially dedicated the spans last night at a ceremony which attracted nearly 50,000 spectators. Scores of small boats, their whistles sounding, lined the river.
Congressman Dow W. Harter of Akron gave the dedicatory address at the 1,700-foot Central high level structure, and Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland spoke at the Erie avenue bascule bridge—the world's largest span of this type.

Announcing the New MERCURY 8 FOR 1941

BEHIND the broad, masterful lines of the new Mercury 8 is written the most amazing success story in modern motor car history. Introduced just two years ago, in a field crowded with well-established cars, the Mercury dared to challenge the recognized standards of value and performance with new ideas! And to date, it has won over 150,000 owner testimonials!

The story of the Mercury's success lies in the owner's story, written in the words of their enthusiasm. When they found the Mercury a big car in all the good things the word implies—and an economical car, they agreed to praise far and wide. And so conception was still enthusiasm that they made the new Mercury one of the most popular cars in its field.

The 1941 Mercury adds to the new ideas that have made this car a name for comfort, for easy handling due to a revolution. It is a new and livelier car, a thrillingly big car—in size and cost. Body and doors swing out over the running boards. Windshield and windows are wider and deeper. A new long windshield adds still more spaciousness.

You'll find the 1941 Mercury an easier-to-manage car in the judgment of your dealer—any Mercury, Lincoln or Ford dealer will arrange a demonstration for you on short notice.

An Old Problem Reappears

RECENT disclosures of youthful "gang" activities in Marion and nearby communities, including accounts of numerous thefts and burglaries in which a dozen or so boys and young men are said to have participated, provide evidence that there is work to be done here in attacking conditions and influences which are at least partly responsible for such demonstrations of lawlessness.

The problem is not a new one, for wayward young people have long been cause for concern and a subject of study among sociologists, and especially in recent years as records have shown youth occupying an alarmingly predominant place in the ranks of lawbreakers.

Various influences and circumstances have been blamed for this rise of youthful wrongdoing and attempts at correction have been made accordingly. These efforts have not been a failure, even though outbreaks such as the one just revealed here persist in developing occasionally. It can be regarded as certain that were it not for social agencies working for the welfare of young people, the situation would be worse. That being true, there is reason for continuance of this work with greater vigor and determination and on a larger scale than ever. This calls not only for constant vigilance on the part of public authorities but for enlistment of more citizens and more resources in the agencies, such as the Boy Scouts, Y. M. C. A., the Salvation Army and churches, which provide the most effective safeguards and guidance.

No Suspense

IT'S a cruel prank being played on radio officials by Mr. Roosevelt. Thus, he refuses to say his address in observance of the University of Pennsylvania's 200th anniversary is political and obviously couched it in moderate language to keep it from sounding like an ordinary campaign speech.

The fact is that Mr. Roosevelt couldn't say, "My friends" without it being a political address in 1940. He is running for office, and when did an office seeker ever talk for the fun of it? The very fact Mr. Roosevelt is talking signifies he is making political addresses; for a long time before he opened his campaign, it will be recalled, he made no use of the radio.

While radio officials are kept in hot water by the necessity of giving Mr. Willkie as much free time for his frankly political addresses as they give Mr. Roosevelt, the country is in no suspense. His listeners know who's running for president and would be more favorably impressed if the candidate who thinks eight years are only a warmup would employ more of the candor he speaks of so often.

Communique to Sports Writers

THIRTY seconds of research would reveal to any interested party that Life Insurance Medical Directors and the Actuarial Society of America will stake their money on a man weighing 154 lbs. If he's between 20 and 24 years old and 5 ft. 9 inches tall. A six-footer at the same age is a good risk if he weighs 163 lbs.

Furthermore, the average male in the United States, i. e., the one who reads stories about football and baseball, is a long way from average. Statistically, he's a runt. But don't tell him that. Because man for man, American males think they're quite a bunch of boys. They're touchy on the subject.

In other words, sports writers, don't speak of football players who happen to weigh 155 lbs. or baseball players who can slip into a size 36 as midgets, dwarfs, atoms, shrimps and pygmies. It makes the rest of us midgets, dwarfs, atoms, shrimps and pygmies furious. The tactful approach is to point out that the 155 pounders are getting along all right in the company of ponderous Goliaths and blubber bellies.

As Young as They Feel

VIRILITY, youth, vigor—the catchwords of the Fascist orators—must be falling flat these days in the domestic market. Officially, of course, Great Britain still is decadent and will be crushed as soon as Hitler and Mussolini get into the mood.

The notion that Nazism and Fascism had something to do with youth—something to offer youth—will die hard. It is something like the youth movements in the United States which are instigated and promoted by cynical, disillusioned oldsters. The youths, themselves, are last to realize they are being exploited.

Hitler and Mussolini have had marked success with youth. They have become so obsessed with the youth idea that they think of their nations as being young. Mussolini, moreover, seems to think that he, himself, must act like a youngster. When these old movements have run their course, mass psychologists should have a field day sorting out the causes and effects.

Meanwhile, it begins to look as though the thing which always catches up to men and organizations which pretend to be younger than they are is beginning to catch up to the dictators.

News Behind the News

Nazi Campaign To Line Up American Business Reported Frustrated.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 — A Nazi campaign to line up American business has been frustrated. No less formidable a business power than General Robert E. Wood, chairman of the board of Sears-Roebuck, looked up from his desk recently to find a representative of a German commercial agency. The Hitler man only wanted to leave a list of products for which his nation could like to place orders.

Wood looked the list over and found to his amazement it contained all industrial products in which he has a personal hobby-interest, certain goods produced in southern factories he personally promoted.

His interest aroused, Wood talked among business colleagues and soon discovered German commercial agents had approached many outstanding manufacturers with similar lists exhibiting an intimate knowledge of their personal interests.

The lists are now in the waste baskets or the FBI files.

All Seams Mended

All seams and cracks in the Republican household have now been mended. A complete policy agreement has been effected in agreement with the vice-presidential candidate upon a 10-day tour into the farm belt to see a kind of a farm program. McNary will also carry the Willkie torch into New England and finally to the Pacific coast just before election day. The Republican campaign is getting streamlined.

To Join Willkie Train

Watch for the young Republican senator, Henry Cabot Lodge, to join the Willkie campaign train. It will be more than a social event. Lodge will act as an ambassador from the Senate to the campaign, which was none too pleased in the beginning with the internationalist tone of the Willkie foreign policy.

War Dept. Modernization

Forecast reorganization in the war department (it might better be called a modernization) is being worked out quietly. Civilian procurement experts are to be brought in to put some speed into contract deliveries. The top heads are now completely overburdened by the vast enterprise. They can see the next big trouble is going to come when the deliveries are not received on time. Expert buyers from the heavy goods industries are to take care of that. A shift in jobs creating a new assistant secretaryship will take some weight from Robert Patterson's shoulders.

National defense commission publicity has centered wholly so far on the letting of contracts in which of course is a wholly misleading indicator of the effectiveness of the program. Deliveries are what will count.

Propaganda Group

An inner expose of the greatest private propaganda organization ever perfected in this country, the "Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies," will be found in the congressional record of Sept. 21, page 18,897. It is a painstaking analysis of the movement and motives behind the movement by the skilled newsmen, Charles G. Ross of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. There you will find involved not only the names of such cabinet officers as War Secretary Stimson and Navy Secretary Knox, but men working on the defense commission, such as May, economist, William Vandell Elliott, Harvard professor, and columnists.

Changing War Scene

Southern End of Axis Seems Destined for Action.

SIGNS that the war is about to move into a fourth phase continue to be seen. The axis powers seem about to become active at the southern end, where Italy's sea power partly compensates Germany's tremendous land and air power.

First phase of the war was Poland. Second was preparation for and finally the invasion of the low countries, leading to defeat of France. Third phase was beginning of the siege of Great Britain. Many experts have foreseen that sooner or later—sooner if the siege of Britain did not go well—a fourth phase would be attacks on Gibraltar and the Suez canal.

Pressure is being exerted on Spain to bring it into the war, which means action against Gibraltar is in the offing. The Italian drive into Egypt is called by the Axis itself, but on the Suez canal. The canal is so intimately involved with Egypt that Egyptian, even those hostile to British rule, may not be able to grasp the distinction.

IN THEORY, at least, the Suez canal belongs under Egyptian sovereignty. The 100-mile canal traverses Egyptian territory. It was the Egyptian government which in 1854 granted to a French company headed by De Lesseps a concession to connect the Red sea with the Mediterranean. And Egypt gets about $5,000,000 a year from the canal. Incidentally, the British government opposed the canal as a potential danger to the empire, and none of the original capital which built the canal was subscribed by British interests.

Of the original stock more than one half was subscribed by private French investors and a very few shares by Italians. Forty four per cent went to the Khedive of Egypt. It was the Khedive's share which Disraeli bought in 1875 for some $20,000,000. Theoretically, then, Great Britain had not a controlling interest in the canal, but the British government in recent years may have bought enough shares to make up a majority. A majority of the directors and of the administrative personnel are French.

In 1888 the Suez Canal convention was signed by Italy, Great Britain, Germany, France, Turkey, Russia, Austria-Hungary, Spain and the Netherlands. (The United States did not adhere.) The treaty provides that the canal shall always be open, in war as in peace, to every merchant vessel or warship, belligerent or neutral. The canal is never to be subjected to the right of blockade. The treaty was not ratified by Great Britain and hence did not really go into effect until 1904. In that year Great Britain, in a separate treaty with France, agreed to adhere to the Suez canal convention. Even so, the convention contained a reservation whereby the British might disregard it, as long as they remained in Egypt, if the terms

The inconsequential puzzle which C.I.O.'s John Lewis has been able to make of his personal stand in the third term campaign was further complicated when he neglected to join the Corcoran-LaGuardia-Norris independent committee for Roosevelt. Lewis was invited to attend the organizing meeting in Senator Norris' office with Mayor LaGuardia, ex-ghost Tommie Corcoran, and David K. Miles, a former arranger for Harry Hopkins in the commerce department. The meeting was held but Mr. Lewis did not even send up an eyebrow hair as a souvenir. Afterward the Norris office denied Lewis was invited. The Lewis office smiled and said only that Uncle John had not gone.

MISFORTUNE TELLER?

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Friday, Sept. 26, 1930.

Both Democrats and Republicans were entering upon their fall campaigns in Marion county. The opening meeting of the Republicans was to be at LaRue on Oct. 10 with Clarence J. Brown, secretary of state, Congressman Grant E. Mouser Jr., Dallas Sullivan, candidate for state senator, and Miss Gertrude Jones of Findlay district committee woman as speakers. No Democratic rallies had been set as yet but George White, candidate for governor, was expected to be speaker at a meeting early in the campaign.

Construction of a new dam in the Scioto river south of Prospect was completed and resulted in raising the water level about two feet.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. William Jordan of near Prospect.

A news dispatch from Leipzig, Germany, stated that "endless criticism assailed government ears today for failure to launch a strong counter-attack against the startling claims of Adolf Hitler, Fascist chieftain, who yesterday boldly announced himself as the implacable foe of the treaty of Versailles and the present German government."

Twenty Years Ago

It was Sunday, Sept. 26, 1920. Leo St. Germaine returned to Toledo after a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. St. Germaine, near Marion.

Mrs. Nellie Heffernan returned to her home in Springfield after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Schroeder of East Center street.

The cornerstone of the Prospect Baptist church was laid with ceremonies attended by Marion Baptist association pastors and laymen. Talks were given by Rev. W. G. Foster of Radnor, and Rev. H. C. Gillespie of Richmond.

Members of the Harding Newsboys club, young business and professional men who in their boyhood carried The Marion Star during the period in which Mr. Harding was circulation manager, called on Senator and Mrs. Harding at their home in the afternoon. They met at The Star office at 2:30 and marched to the home of one of the interesting features of the visit was a request by Mrs. Harding for those in the party whom she had "spanked" when they carried The Star to hold up their hands. Three responded. They were S. W. Downing of New York City, John A. Wood of Marion, Miss Harding, and three men and other group pictures were taken of all the visitors with Senator and Mrs. Harding. Among those who made the visit were P. L. Idleman, Pendleton, Ore.; C. B. Bleher, Columbus; E. Merdith, Cleveland; A. J. Sanford, Canton; S. W. Downing, New York City; H. Today and Tomorrow

U. S. Interests Seen at Stake in World Battle for Supremacy of Oceans.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

ONCE Hitler broke through the Allied defenses on the Western Front, the European war was destined inevitably to become in the literal sense, and not merely rhetorically, a world war. We are now witnessing the events which were prepared in May. The battles over England and northern Europe and in the English Channel, at Gibraltar, towards Egypt and Suez, at Dakar in Africa, and in French Indo-China, are the opening battles of a great campaign in which there is at stake not only the fate of the European continent, but the mastery of the world.

These battles, which are so many widely separated points across more than half the world, are strategically one great Warships alone cannot control the oceans. They must have fortified harbors from which to operate, shipyards and drydocks and repair shops, and all the passageways from one ocean to another must be held. The shortest passageway between the Atlantic and the Pacific is the Panama Canal. By holding the canal our fleet can be concentrated in either ocean. But Panama is not the only passageway between the two oceans. There is another way which runs through the English Channel, the Straits of Gibraltar, the Suez Canal and past Singapore. This is the way the Russian fleet went to the Pacific in the Russo-Japanese war. This is the way the British and French fleets have generally gone from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

At the present time we control the Panama passage from the Atlantic to the Pacific and Britain controls the other passage. Warships alone cannot control the oceans. They must have fortified harbors from which to operate, shipyards and drydocks and repair shops, and all the passageways from one ocean to another must be held. The shortest passageway between the Atlantic and the Pacific is the Panama Canal. By holding the canal our fleet can be concentrated in either ocean. But Panama is not the only passageway between the two oceans. There is another way which runs through the English Channel, the Straits of Gibraltar, the Suez Canal and past Singapore. This is the way the Russian fleet went to the Pacific in the Russo-Japanese war. This is the way the British and French fleets have generally gone from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

THE ROAD TO SHANI LUN

EXOTIC ROMANCE OF MONGOLIA

by Rita Mottler Hanson

CHAPTER ONE Danger In China

LYNN BRITTON, dressed in an old tweed suit, slouch hat, and loose-swinging overcoat, belonging to her half-brother, strode along the path leading to the walled city of Shani Lun. Her eyes were dancing with excitement. She lifted her face to the sharp, wintry breeze sweeping down out of the Mongolian plateau. They were passing a field of winter wheat which separated the squalid Chinese village from the walled park of the temple-monastery on the hillside above.

The Temple of the Three Joyous Reasons," she murmured. "What does it mean?"

"This Temple is a replica of the one in Shani Lun," Dick Britton explained. "It was built centuries ago to commemorate the marriage of the Mongolian prince to a Chinese princess."

"Three Joyous Reasons," she repeated. "Dick, that is perfect! I declare right now that it shall be my marriage motto—Three Joyous Reasons."

Her half-brother's eyelids flickered and he regarded her with an odd, sidelong glance that frightened her for a moment. She wished she knew him better. This was their first meeting in fifteen years.

Dick Britton, a slight, middle-aged man, had the thin, saw-tooth face and cloudy eyes of an opium smoker. He had missed too many boats. "Here in the Orient," he said, "girls do not make the terms. That is managed by their elders."

"Thank heaven I am an American!" Lynn exclaimed. Her gaze sought the western horizon beyond the dragon sands of the Gobi Desert, where lay that mysterious country they were headed for on the morrow—the Mongol Principality of Shani Lun. Recently from home, she had not yet learned the meaning of fear, but a certain question had kept nagging at her mind ever since their meeting in Peiping the day before.

"Dick," she began hesitatingly, "is there any chance that your friend, this native prince, has romantic notions about me?"

"What if he does?" Dick demanded, his eyes smiling a little, yet unreadable.

"Then I go home at once," she replied. "I have no desire to become a princess."

Dick laughed. "No Cinderella about you, is there, Lynn?"

While he stopped to light a cigarette she moved on slowly. "But don't be so fond of yourself, my girl," he mocked, catching up with her. "Mongols have beautiful maidens of their own. White women are no treat to them. They think Caucasians ugly with their blond hair and pale blue eyes."

"My hair is black and my eyes are dark blue," she reminded him.

His expression softened for an instant as he gazed at her. "You're a handsome kid. Where did you get those long, full eyes and that dimple in your chin?"

"Gift of the gods," she smiled. "Look!" she said, pointing to a monster eagle that had dropped out of the sky and was soaring low above them. "Do we look like sheep?"

"Maybe he knows," suggested Dick, "that sometimes the villagers expose girl babies in this field."

Lynn shuddered. "Let's think of something else." They caught a glimpse of the yellow-tiled roof of the temple looming among the ancient evergreen trees inside the walled park.

A moment later they entered the gloom beneath the gatehouse and halted while Dick gave a handful of silver to the furtive lama guard. The great iron-studded gate clanged shut behind them with an ominous sound.

They hastened out of the shadows and paused in a patch of wintry sunlight to get their bearings. Dick Britton was staring up the slope at the central temple, the side pavilions, and the rear dormitories of the lamassery, but Lynn, despite her quest, looked back over her shoulder.

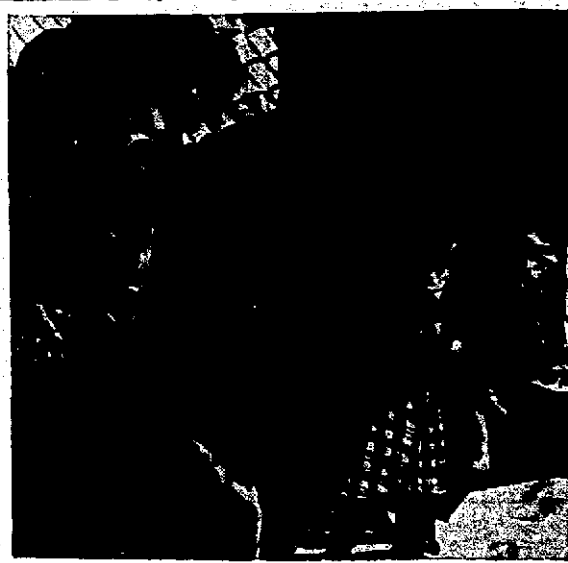

In the window of the gatehouse above them crouched a Mongol pilgrim in a dull red robe, his face deeply pockmarked and one ear missing. He regarded her with a cold, slanting stare which had all the menace of a beast of prey and none of the friendliness of a common humanity.

Lynn said nothing but moved closer to Dick, drawing the collar of her overcoat more snugly about her throat. She was shivering from cold as well as from excitement.

And pull your hat-brim lower," Dick directed. "It's dangerous enough for a white man to barge his way inside these walls. But should they suspect I'd brought a woman—"

Lynn glanced back at the gatehouse. The pilgrim had disappeared.

"They'll never guess," she replied, scrutinizing her tall, splendid figure concealed in his old clothes. "I make a good-looking man."

"Too darn good-looking," he grumbled. "I was a fool to bring you here."

"Oh, Dick, you couldn't help yourself, I made you bring me," she reminded him as they moved slowly up the slope among the evergreens. "I'm determined to see these Shani Lun people before they see me, and this is my only chance. Tell me more about the Incarnate Buddha who is to escort us across the desert."

Dick's saw-toothed face twisted into a semblance of a grin. "Sherlock Fuyeh is a magician as well as a god. If you like that sort of thing."

"A magician!" Lynn exclaimed. "A real medieval magician!"

Dick nodded. "He can do things that will make your hair stand on end."

"Heavens!" murmured Lynn. "What are we getting into?"

"Nothing I'm unable to handle providing you don't try to scrap with the natives."

"Scrap with a magician—I!" She looked back and discovered that the pilgrim had reappeared again, this time on the grounds inside the wall.

retreat from this adventure before it's too late." He caught her arm and swerved sharply. They were avoiding a pair of monks who came walking down the hill to the gate-house below.

"Is one of them Sherlock?" whispered Lynn.

"No," Dick returned impatiently, "but I don't want the lamas to get a good look at you in this bright light. Sherlock is staying in the walled town of Pui Shu. He will come on horseback to attend the serenade in the temple, and will be surrounded by a band of Mongolian cavalry officers."

They climbed farther up the slope and paused before a blue-green porcelain stupa containing a god with a woman in his arms. Lynn looked out over the landscape.

Below them, past the gatehouse, the river ran down a treeless gully arched by an ancient marble bridge of matchless line and proportion. To the left, huddled the Chinese village surrounded by patches of green wheat interspersed with stony knolls. She knew that somewhere to the south loomed the Great Wall snaking its way over hill and valley until it reached the sea. Ruby sunset flooded the landscape, and fading breezes carried the tinkle of roof bells hanging from the corners of the yellow temple. Dick moved on. Lynn asked: "If we're in danger here at the edge of civilization, what will it be like when we're crossing the Gobi?"

"We'll be safe," he answered shortly. "Sherlock, as well as the Prince who sent him, are powerful figures in this part of the world." He showed her a flock of ravens wheeling above a white spot on a distant brown slope.

"Carry on," she shuddered. "I hope it's not an omen. I came with such a friendly feeling towards the Mongols. What few I've seen remind me of American Indians. Mongols have a remarkable history. It is predicted their seed carries the mystery of the future of mankind. Doesn't that thrill you?"

"My own future is enough concern for me," she said. He stopped speaking as a student monk, a dark caretaker, walked past them with an unfriendly stare, a bag of pine cones on his back.

Waiting until he had disappeared in a dormitory near the farther wall of the park, Lynn asked, "Do you remember that little turquoise-encrusted silver box you sent me—the one with the invitation to visit Shani Lun? You wrote that it was a charm box and a gift from the royal house. Did you place a spring of white lilac in the box?"

He shook his head. "The box was given to me wrapped. I did not open it. They told me it was a museum piece. The last man who wore it must have placed the lilac twig there. The natives carry strange fetishes in these charm boxes and wear them round their necks like lockets."

"Could I find the last man who wore mine?" she demanded.

"Since it's a museum piece he must be dead these many years. Why?" he asked, becoming jocular. "Has the thing cast a spell over you?"

They had come to the terrace before the small pavilion. The pilgrim was not in sight. Dick stepped into the building and Lynn followed. Very little light came through the dirty parchment on the latticed windows. The only monument the place contained was set in the center of the room, a white tablet standing upright on the black of a marble turtle.

"A memorial tablet," said Dick and repeated his question. "Did the thing cast a spell over you?"

"In a way," Lynn admitted, glancing about uneasily in the gloom as if she felt someone she could not see. "All my life I've had a recurrent dream of standing in a tower and gazing at a white lilac tree in a walled garden, a Presence at my shoulder. "I've searched for that tree throughout America. I know that it exists somewhere on earth. When the charm box came I broke my engagement to Sam Telford, and bought my ticket for China."

A GOWN of broad white tulle was worn by Miss Mary Corinne LeMaster when she walked down the aisle of Trinity Baptist church to become the bride of Richard P. Jennings last evening at 8:30 o'clock. The bodice had a sweetheart neckline and the long fitted sleeves were puffed at the shoulder and button trimmed at the wrist. The skirt extended into a wide train and her fingertip length veil fell from a rhinestone tiara worn by her sister, Mrs. J. Eugene Auld, at her own wedding. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom, and her bridal bouquet held white roses and adiantum. The bride's father, L. H. LeMaster, escorted her to the altar and gave her in marriage, and her sister, Mrs. Auld, was her matron of honor and only attendant.

Mrs. Auld's gown was in a fiesta rose shade and had short sleeves and the neckline was accented with a necklace of brilliant in a matching shade. Her short, illusion veil, worn over her face, matched her gown in color and was held with a Juliet cap of pearls. She carried an arm bouquet of white pompons and asters.

Thomas Jennings served as best man for his brother, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph M. Jennings of 314 Windsor street, and seating the guests were J. Eugene Auld, brother-in-law of the bride, Jack Lautenlager, John Powell Jr. and Frederick Raab.

The altar before which the couple repeated their vows, read by the pastor, Rev. Lawrence A. Wood, was decorated with palms and foliage and tall baskets with white gladioli. Completing the decorative note were white tapers held in tall candelabra.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Charles Gill of Richmond, cousin of the bride, played a program of nuptial music, and William LeMaster of Richmond, also a cousin of the bride, sang. The organ program included "Sweet Evening Star," from "Tannhauser," "Mid-Summer Night's Dream," "Indian Love Song," "The Rose Tree," "Love's Old Sweet Song," "I Love You Truly," "At Dawning," and "Serenade." Mr. LeMaster sang "O Promise Me," and "Because," and during the ceremony Mrs. Gill played "Liebestraum," Liszt, and for the processional and recessional the traditional wedding marches.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. LeMaster chose a gown of solid blue crepe with wine accessories and the bridegroom's mother wore a costume in a hunter's green shade with black accessories. Both wore corsages of gardenias.

To light the candles Miss Frances Jennings, sister of the bride, carried a gown of pink net over tulle with zircon clips at the neckline and trimmed with blue satin bows. Her flowers were a corsage of roses and heather.

The ceremony was read on the fourth wedding anniversary of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Auld.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. LeMaster were hosts at a reception for 75 guests at their home at 139 West Columbia street. Garden flowers and baskets of pink gladioli decorated the room. The bride's table held a three-tiered wedding cake and was lighted with white tapers in silver candlesticks. Assisting in the dining room were Miss Louise Guthrie, Miss Mary Cae Hogan and Mrs. Frederick Raab.

WITH THE NEW Solovox HAMMOND

Put this life in your own playing. Play melody with the right hand on the Solovox keyboard; and play piano with your left hand! Thus, you'll add beautiful sustained tones of the Solovox — effects of violin, trumpet, cello, saxophone — to your own piano accompaniment.

And the Solovox is amazingly easy to play. In fact, even a child can use it! It can be attached to any piano. It does not interfere with the normal use of the piano. And it does not change the piano tone.

Hear the Solovox. Try it. See how your own playing comes to life! Let us demonstrate this newest achievement by the makers of the Hammond Organ and the Hammond Novachord.

pressure of the Axis on Spain in regard to Gibraltar, and upon the French government in regard to the French African empire on the Atlantic Ocean. The grand objective of the Axis is to crush sea power in its main base in the British Isles, and at the same time clear the passageway from Europe to the Pacific so that the German, Italian and Japanese fleets shall be free to act together. If this objective is attained, we shall stand on the defensive in the two oceans with the initiative in the hands of Japan, Germany and Italy.

Big Problem of Century

This is much the most serious prospect that has confronted this nation for a hundred years, that is to say, since the breakdown of the Spanish empire under the blows of Napoleon and the subsequent alliance of Russia, Prussia, Austria and France. In the twenty-five years, from 1798 to 1823, from the first news that Spain had ceded Louisiana to France until the Canning-Rush negotiations laid the foundation of the Monroe Doctrine, the United States stood in the greatest peril. In these twenty-five years the United States was threatened by Russia coming down the Pacific Coast from Alaska, by Napoleon coming from Europe, and by the United States standing in the greatest peril. In these twenty-five years the United States was threatened by Russia coming down the Pacific Coast from Alaska, by Napoleon coming from Europe, and by the United States standing in the greatest peril.

The peril passed because in the end Great Britain defeated Napoleon and was powerful enough, therefore, to forbid the continental alliance to embark on the conquest of Spanish America. Without the British naval victory of Trafalgar, the failure of Napoleon to invade Great Britain, and in the end his final fall at Waterloo, it is difficult to imagine how the small weak republic of the United States could have prevented the European struggle for empire from embracing the Western Hemisphere. If this had not been prevented, our century of isolation would not have been a century of isolation.

1941 Ford and Mercury Models On Display Here

The 1941 Ford and Mercury automobiles made their debut in Marion today when the first models went on display at the Ed C. Walters garage showrooms on East Center street.

The Ford V-8's are offered in two series, the DeLuxe and the Super DeLuxe. In both these series, as well as in the Mercury 8, the wheelbase, overall length and width have been increased.

In the Ford V-8's the front seat is seven inches wider than last year and head room and window area have been increased. Running boards have practically disappeared from view, due to the width of the new bodies, but they are still there to step off when the doors are open.

An entirely new body design is included in the 1941 Super DeLuxe line—a sedan coupe. This coupe combines a close coupled body design with a seating arrangement for six. Altogether there are four body types in the DeLuxe line and six in the Super DeLuxe series.

Among refinements on all models which are being emphasized by Ford engineers are "speed" lines on the side of both front and rear fenders, new hidden gasoline filler cap, electric light on the hugger compartment which automatically lights whenever the lid is raised, ventilating front windows, a one-piece rear window of tempered glass, radio grille, twin windshield wipers with speed control, fender top parking lamps and two-spoke steering wheels.

Styling Features

Styling features of the new Mercury which are being stressed are bright metal fender "speed" lines, new chrome radiator grille, door that practically enclose the running boards and additional use of heavy chrome to add to the car's streamlined appearance.

The wheelbase is two inches longer than last year and the spring base has been increased in proportion to 129 inches. The front seat measures 57 and one-half inches in width and the rear seat is 31 inches—both dimensions considerably larger than those for Authorities Furnish Report Leading to Indictments.

Special to The Star
DELAWARE, O., Sept. 24.—Two of six persons under indictment in Franklin county criminal court on charges of making false oaths in an affidavit verifying nominating petitions to place names of Communist party candidates on the Nov. 5 election ballot, were investigated in Delaware county last week, according to Prosecutor H. Lloyd Jones said yesterday afternoon.

The two are Mrs. Ruth Perloff, indicted on eight counts, and her husband, Jack Perloff, indicted on 10 counts. They were under investigation in Delaware county last week, according to Prosecutor Jones, and information obtained here was given to Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett of Franklin county.

Prosecutor Jones said that Mrs. Perloff's name appeared as circulator on two petitions which were circulated in Delaware county and that she actually had circulated only one.

The Franklin county prosecutor said that each count in the indictments charged that the defendants who allegedly were circulators of petitions "swore falsely" that the signatures on a petition were made in his or her presence and were signatures of the persons whose names they purport to be.

"The state's case will center around the fact that the signatures were not made in the presence of persons who made the oath of circulation," Mr. Bartlett said. There are four distinct statutes dealing with false oaths on nominating petitions, carrying penalties upon conviction of from 30 days in jail to 10 years in the penitentiary, according to the Franklin county prosecutor.

Common Sense About Constipation

A doctor would tell you that the best thing to do with constipation is get at its cause. That way you don't have to endure it first and try to "cure" it afterward—you can avoid having it.

Chances are you won't have to look far for the cause if you eat the super-refined foods most people do. Most likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this is what you lack, try crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains just the "bulk" you need.

Eat All-Bran often, drink plenty of water, and join the Bulk-Builders. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

New Uniforms For Winter Ordered at Marion CCC Camp

Marion's CCC Camp Harding is getting ready for a long and cold winter, and probably the most welcome of the preparations, as far as the boys are concerned, are new uniforms.

The new outfits, scheduled to arrive somewhere around Oct. 40, will be spruce green, replacing the familiar army brown uniforms the boys have worn ever since arrival here.

Although Lieut. Philip Musgrave, office in charge of the camp, has not received an official description, it is believed the uniforms will consist of a cap, shirt and trousers with black shoes, and a heavy overcoat. Shoes now are brown.

Dressed up in their new clothes, the 100 boys at the camp will give the effect of being modern Robin Hoods, except that they carry tools instead of bows and arrows.

Incidentally, the camp has just discharged 18 boys whose time had expired and has received 18 new boys from Yellow Springs, O., originally from the west.

Lieut. Musgrave also reported that some of the boys at the camp have obtained private employment in their home towns and have been released.

Other preparations for the cold of winter include installation of two large stoves in each of the barracks and placing insulating strips around the windows.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, puzzling, painful backaches which blanch one's face and often caused by tired kidneys, may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start ailing backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Premises To Make Amends for Criticism of Vote on Conscription.

By The Associated Press
PORTSMOUTH, O., Sept. 26.—A. G. Williams, president of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, announced today to make amends for criticism of the vote on conscription by a Chamber bulletin criticizing their vote against the conscription bill.

"I am very sorry if a misunderstanding occurred," he said. "The bulletin originated in the office of George B. Chandler of Columbus, executive vice president of the Ohio Chamber. I am sure Mr. Chandler will be glad to explain his position."

In this matter, he added, will be presented to the Chamber's directors.

A letter demanding retraction of Chandler's statements was signed in Washington by Senator Robert A. Taft (R) and 12 Republican congressmen.

The letter, drafted at a meeting of the representatives, was mailed to Williams at Portsmouth. The law-makers said others in the delegation had objected to critical statements in a circular to the Chamber membership by Chandler, but they were not available to sign the protest.

The signers, besides Taft, were Bender, Elston, Hess, Routhorn, Jones, Cleveland, Brown, Jenkins, Vayes, Seecombe, McGregor and Lewis.

A Chamber of Commerce bulletin, issued Sept. 18, said of the conscription vote:

"It is the right of every congressman to think and vote as he pleases, but in this vote Ohio was denied representative government."

The bulletin pointed out that only three Ohioans, Democrats, voted for the measure, although the Gallup poll showed a decisive majority in Ohio favoring the conscription bill.

"Somebody packed the galleries against conscription, day in and day out," the bulletin added. It also said anti-conscription crowd composed of "Communists, fifth columnists and professional pacifists" demonstrated on the Capitol grounds.

Chandler said the bulletin was written to C. of C. members and not intended for general distribution.

London Newsman Loses His Home Every Other Day

By J. NORMAN LODGE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON, Sept. 23.—In a city under nightly bombing, every other day is moving day for me. For the third time in exactly one week I am practically homeless again. This time a fire chased me out into the street. It looks like some kind of record, but I'll gladly swap it for a used bus ticket.

A week ago I came over to London from peaceful Dublin. That night one of Reichsmarschall Goering's boys routed me out of bed with high explosives that ruined my hotel.

The next night I fooled them. I stayed in an underground restaurant. When I got back to my newly chosen home I found a crater outside the door. I got a new place.

Yesterday I was congratulating myself on being able to get some sleep, but I crawled too soon, for fire got my latest abode last night. Maybe lightning doesn't strike twice in the same place, but this isn't lightning.

I've stood machine gun and artillery fire in Mexico and learned some things about bombs in the World War. Norway improved my military education, but all these were only the primer grades. This London stuff by comparison is like Harvard, Yale and Oxford rolled into one place.

But there's no use in worrying. The medical journal recently observed that there is only one chance in 80,000 of an aerial bomb striking within 50 yards of any one person.

And there's one consolation. My clothes have been so thoroughly smoked that everything I wear smells like genuine Harris Tweed.

sensation in the face will cause pain in the face.

The neuralgia of shingles is of this central character, and certainly facial neuralgia, which often causes excruciating toothache with the result that these people often lose many perfectly good teeth with no alleviation of the pain.

Many remedies have been suggested for facial neuralgia. As a last resort, when the pain becomes too exhausting, the Gasserian ganglion can be removed by surgery. This results in cure in practically all cases, but it should be reserved until other methods have been tried. The condition often subsides and goes away for years spontaneously without reference to treatment.

A valuable method of treatment is the use of trichlorethylene gas. We must add "when it works" because this is not always the case. Its value was discovered by accident—in airplane factories it was used to dissolve the shellac that goes on the wings and body, and workers in these factories often got a temporary numbness of the face. When this observation was applied to facial neuralgia, it was found that inhalation of the gas relieved the pain. It must be used cautiously, under a physician's care, trying it out as a trial at first. If it works, the patient may be promised complete and grateful relief.

Relief from Neuralgia
We have already discussed sciatic neuralgia and shoulder neuralgia in articles this week. To complete the series we should take up intercostal and occipital neuralgia, and the disease known as shingles, which is a form of neuralgia or rather neuritis, but since these are no different in general aspects for treatment purposes than the others discussed, we will consider a unique form of neuralgia, nearly as common as sciatic or shoulder neuralgia, that which affects the facial nerve. It is more severe and painful than any of the others with the possible exception of shingles. It affects the mid- and lower end of the nerve connected with the thalamus of the central nervous system.

A nerve can pain either from stimulation or injury at its tip or from irritation of its central origin deep in the nervous system. An injury of the visual center in the brain will cause flashes of light. An injury of the nerve center for relief from Neuralgia.

Dicky Declares That Edith Is "Bad Medicine" and Agrees To Consult Madge About Her.

"I WASN'T trying to keep you in there," I told my husband. "I was just trying to give Edith and Katrina a chance to get the library unseen by Edith." He quirked his eyebrows quizzically. "How do they come into the picture?" he asked. "They have a foolish notion that Edith in her present mood—may attempt to attack me," I said, "so they're staying close to me. But Edith has a phobia against seeing either of them, so they're keeping out of sight."

"She probably hasn't anywhere near the phobia that they cherish about her," my husband said cautiously. "And what nice mild words you use! 'Mood' for instance. Edith is as crazy as any loon that ever used a tree top for a broadcasting station. She may snap out of it, but she's distinctly bad medicine just now."

"I shall feel a lot safer about you," he went on, "now that I know old Lil and Katrina are on the job. They're a powerful team, that pair. Please give them my thanks and my blessing. I'll stop myself and see them. I must fly." He gave me a casual kiss, and turned away, but I clutched his sleeve. "Will you see me the first minute you can when this work of Father's is done?" I asked insistently. His brows rose, and he jerked a thumb back toward the room where he had deposited Edith. "Edith?" he whispered. "Yes, I simply must see you about her," I whispered back. "His face darkened, and set stubbornly. 'I don't want any part of it,' he said obstinately."

I despise the tactics of "coaxing women," but in my desperation I employed them. I put my hands on his coat and pulled him slightly toward me. "Please, Dicky!" I implored. "I don't often ask you to do things you don't want to do, but this means a lot to me. Please! at least let me tell you about it as soon as you're free to talk!"

Dicky Premises He looked down at me with something inscrutable in his eyes, then suddenly capitulated. "Well! it seems to be your funeral," he said. "I'll drop around as soon as I can get free."

"Oh! thank you!" I said with real gratitude, but my words were lost as my husband caught me to him in a rough, quick embrace. "You're the world's biggest simperton and best scout," he murmured, and his kiss was warm upon my lips as I went into my little study, feeling that I had a "panoply of armor" to meet any problem that should face me there.

Miss Whitlock was standing in such a position that Edith could not see her face, although the nurse had a good view of her patient. And as I came in she signaled that everything was all right so far.

Edith Quiet Edith was lying back against the pillows of the bed we had set up for her. Her eyes, watching the doorway were haunted, but there was that in them which told me I had given her something infinitely precious in arranging for Dicky to carry her downstairs. "Madge!" she said imperatively as I came into the room, and I crossed quickly to her side, conscious that Miss Whitlock was watching her carefully. "Yes, Edie," I said as I reached her. She put up her hand and caught mine, and I saw the nurse move unobtrusively to the bedside, and realized that she was taking no risk whatever of the consequences that might follow the possible snapping of the slender link which kept Edith Fairfax from insanity.

Indians, Still Confident, Must Sweep Three-Game Finale with Tigers

One Loss and Tribe Is Out of Race;
Series Opens Friday at Cleveland.

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The American league at last has reached the showdown stage in its furious pennant struggle and the Detroit Tigers are holding all the aces.

Their double victory over the Chicago White Sox yesterday was all they needed. They now can eliminate the Cleveland Indians by winning any one of the three games the two teams have with each other this week-end. And they can crush off the New York Yankees by winning two of them.

The standings today are:

Club	W	L	Pct.	GB	TP
Detroit	88	62	.589	3
Cleveland	87	64	.576	2	1
New York	84	64	.568	3 1/2	6

It is readily apparent that neither Cleveland nor New York can win except through Detroit losing two games to come down to their level in the lost column.

Yankees Could Tie

The Yankees still could get a tie by winning all their remaining games if Cleveland knocked off the Tigers in two or all three games. In the first case it would be a deadlock with Detroit and in the second with Cleveland. The champions already have won six in a row, however, and to expect them to win six more in four days is stretching the imagination to the breaking point, even against Philadelphia and Washington.

They have a doubleheader today with the A's while Detroit and Cleveland grid for their final opening tomorrow in Cleveland.

The Indians kept in the pennant fight yesterday by beating the St. Louis Browns 4-2 as Al Milner bested Vernon Kennedy in a hurling duel.

Walker-Perroni Bout Set

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 26—Jack (Blondy) Walker, unbeaten Columbus Negro heavyweight, will stake his Ohio heavyweight championship in a 10-round bout with Patsy Perroni of Canton here Monday night.

It will be Walker's third fight in 14 days and his first meeting with Perroni since the Canton Italian fought the Negro to a draw here last April.

COMISKEY FAVORED OVER BAER TONIGHT

Sudden Flood of Money Turns Betting Tide.

By The Associated Press
JERSEY CITY, N. J., Sept. 28

Accompanied by a tidal wave of rumors, a flood of money on Pat Comiskey hit the betting fronts here and across the Hudson in New York today, less than 12 hours before the Paterson Irishman tangles with Max Baer.

One betting commissioner, enjoying his 4 m cheese blitzes in Lindy's, estimated $100,000 of Comiskey money suddenly had appeared. As a result, the odds on the tussle in the local ball park immediately jumped in favor of the big-jawed Irish kid with the solid right hand establishing him as choice at 5 to 7 or 8.

Although the ex-playboy champion is, as always, the question mark of fistiana, and that not even he knows how he'll feel when he climbs into the ring about 8 p. m. (EST), he still regards Pounding Pat as a "fresh young punk" to be flattened.

SNATCHES OF SPORTS

By EDDIE BRIETZ
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 — Since coming into the American league, Bobby Feller has whiffed nearly 1,000 batters, but Burdette of the Tigers isn't one of them. Bernie Blumman has plenty of muscle and bone at Minnesota, but he's short a quarterback, some ends and some reserve backs. The rumor tundra has it that Babe Ruth has made up his mind that managing in the minors is better than not managing at all and is definitely out for the job at St. Paul.

Today's Guest Star

Art Cohn, Oakland (Call) Tribune: "Ernie Lombardi of the Reds has just been made an honorary member of the Cincinnati fire department. I guess Old Smokey is just about at the peak of his career, huh?"

Hope we're wrong, but we'll have to string along with Maxie Baer against Comiskey tonight. By the way the fisticuffing will not be aired.

fight. After all, New York has had its share of nickel series, so why shouldn't Los Angeles have a five-cent prize fight?"

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Pat Patrick, softball pitcher, won and lost the same game, 2 to 1. He hurled for both teams.

During the season he played on each team in different leagues, so when they finally opposed each other he didn't leave the mound. He pitched 16 innings, giving five hits to the winners and seven to the losers.

P. S. He didn't bat against himself.

Red's Big Paul, Not Too Old To Learn, Develops New Weapon Against Batters

This is another in a series of stories about the Cincinnati Reds, National league champions.

By JOHN FRYE
Associated Press Sports Writer

CINCINNATI — Paul Derringer, the big Kentuckian and real estate magnate of Sarasota Fla., is a living contradiction of the old saw about old dogs and new tricks.

Not that Oom Paul is an old dog but he's been around baseball and the Cincinnati Reds long enough to have a right to be a little set in his ways if he likes.

Paul built up his pitching reputation on two things, control and a handsome assortment of curves. Then, after his greatest season 25 victories and 7 losses, he set about to learn the new trick—a knuckle ball. That delivery is hard to master. Many a sage pitcher has refused to monkey with it because he knew he'd never know where it was going.

Auspicious Debut

Paul worked quietly. None of the fans and few of his team mates knew he was experimenting. Then, about mid-season this year he gave it a formal coming out party and came within the length of Stan Hack's bat handle of the pitchers' hall of fame.

It was July 8 up in Chicago. The Cubs had an idea that they weren't getting anywhere but not until Stan got a little bluffer off the handle in about the eighth inning did they realize they were otherwise helpless. The final score was Cincinnati 4, Chicago 0.

The knuckler has affected Paul's control a bit. He now walks as many as three men a game, where last year he once went almost 50 innings without giving a free trip.

Still something of an experiment the knuckler may have cost him some of the dozen games he lost up to mid-September. On the other hand it helped him to 20 victories in that time and who's complaining?

Doubly Unorthodox

The average knuckler doesn't have much push behind it and

PAUL DERRINGER: Control, Curves, and Now a Knuckler

seems to wobble. But Paul's comes up fast. There's no spin on it and it wobbles. The batter thinks it's slow and when he's ready to swing Ernie Lombardi is already tossing the ball back to Paul.

Off the field the big, curly-headed Derringer is one of Cincinnati's best dressed men. He

HARDING TO PRACTICE FOR PIQUA TONIGHT

Lineup for Friday Invasion Is Changed But Little.

Signal drill under the floodlights of Harding stadium tonight will provide Marion Harding footballers with their last season of preparation for tomorrow night's invasion of Piqua. Coach Bill Williams ordered the drill at the close of yesterday's lengthy workout. He reported that no new injuries have cropped out to haunt his team and that a line-up closely resembling last week's will get the starting call.

Against Tiffin Columbian he used Richardson and Crenshaw, ends, Messenger and Turner, tackles, Short and Lewis, guards, Keller, center, Ferguson and Edington, halfbacks, Roberts, quarter and Perty, full. With Short absent from classes because of illness, Williams is expected to juggle other members of the line and bring Bud Edwards in as a replacement.

Twenty-five members will make the trip in a chartered coach leaving tomorrow at 3 p. m. The team will travel via Marysville and Urbana, the route suggested for fans who plan to follow the club. They will follow state highway 4 to Marysville and then route 30 to their destination. The distance, according to the state highway map, is listed at 78 miles, making the trek the longest of the season for the Braves.

Golden Gloves Leaders Map Inter-City Bouts

Development of a new angle in the efforts of the Golden Gloves committee to promote a fist program here was announced following a session of the group last night at the Y. M. C. A. The plan involves the cooperation of the local committee with similar groups in Mansfield and Marion for the promotion of a series of cards in the three cities.

According to the plan each city would provide a team of eight amateur fighters. Each team would be host to the other two squads each city with at least a pair of boxing programs. Members of the Marion committee plan to visit both Mt. Vernon and Mansfield in the near future to take up the proposal with boxing committees there.

No tentative dates have been set for the organization of the leather-sunging squads out local officials are hopeful that success of their plan may bring Marion a fight card some time next month. The committee pointed out that free training facilities are available at the Y. M. C. A. for any youths interested in Golden Gloves boxing and that the most promising candidates will be selected for the representative team.

The committee here is composed of persons representing the Y. M. C. A. and Marion Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the annual Golden Gloves meet. It is headed by Edwin King, chairman.

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 26 — Run up the flag, and bring out the band—the Fighting Lutherans of Wittenberg college have gone patriotic!

Instead of red jerseys which have been traditional with Wittenbergers since 1892 because the college colors are cardinal and cream, the football team now is clothed in navy blue pants and jerseys. The helmet is white. Red appears in arm bands, stripes down the side.

There you have it—red, white and blue.

"No better dressed men on the gridiron" says Athletic Director John B. Vanwhy.

As for football itself the outlook is not too good for 1940, according to Coach T. W. Stobbs, who lacks a good line.

Greenberg's Bat Gives Tigers Most Potent Outfield

Big Hank Far Ahead of Any of Reds; McCosky and Fox No Slouches.

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 26—The heroic figure of big Hank Greenberg overshadows all rivals so completely that it is difficult to start to compare the outfielders of the teams that will clash in the World Series next week.

The great Detroit left fielder, though playing a position he had only seen at a distance up to last March, has pounded the ball at such a terrific pace this season that he hasn't even a remote rival on the Cincinnati Reds.

The converted first baseman leads the American league in home runs, runs batted in and runs scored.

In the World Series (providing, of course, that he gets there), he will be perhaps the most serious single menace to face a set of worried pitchers since Babe Ruth hung up his wagon-tongue. To make the Tigers' outfield superior to even the most pronounced may also possess the second-best defense among the three clubs concerned. He is Barney McCosky, their sophomore center fielder, who at last official average was bunting the ball at .388 and generally crowding Greenberg as a run-producer.

Their right fielder, Pete Fox, is no slouch of a lugger, himself.

OHIO WESLEYAN GRIDDERS TO OPEN SEASON FRIDAY

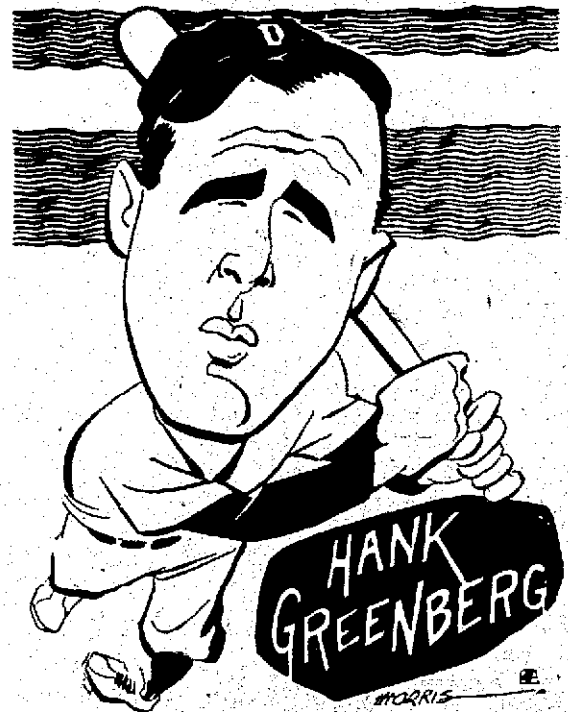

Ohio Wesleyan's Coach George Gauthier said today he is expecting a tough battle when the Gridders open their 1940 season against Muskingum at New Concord Friday night, but reports his squad is in good shape for the encounter. Gauthier has two fairly strong defensive eleveners. The varsity line will average 180 pounds and the backs are light, but speedy. First home game will be with Miami Oct. 5.

TWO IN AREA TO START WITH O. N. U. GRIDDERS

George Keel of Kenton will start at quarterback and Francis Kubbs of Mt. Gilead at half when Ohio Northern's Polar Bears open their season Friday night at Findlay college. Coach Harris Lamb reported today. Others in the starting backfield will be Junior Bray of Toronto at half and Tom Pierson of Copley at full. Kubbs, a sophomore, will get his first taste of college football in the game, while Keel is a veteran.

Folding into a compact package when not being used, a portable dark room for photographers has been invented that can be set up in any room.
